

Mount Sinai Health System

Ambulatory New Graduate Fellowship Program

The Ambulatory New Graduate Fellowship Program will support our RN fellows in the growing ambulatory sector of healthcare while developing future nurse leaders. Our graduates are well-prepared with an in-depth knowledge in the health conditions commonly encountered in ambulatory practices. During this comprehensive, 20-week program, RN fellows will attend didactic lectures on the common health conditions and concerns seen in the ambulatory setting, will enhance their physical assessment skills in the simulation lab, and will rotate through several ambulatory specialties with advanced team members. Towards the end of the program, the RN fellows will have the opportunity to work with members of their nursing leadership team on a departmental Quality Improvement or Evidence Based Practice project to advance their leadership and research capabilities.

Candidate Requirements

- Graduation from a Baccalaureate Nursing Program in good standing before the cohort start date.
- A strong interest in career path as an ambulatory nurse
- No more than 6 months of nursing experience
- Must have successfully passed the NCLEX prior to cohort start date.
- Satisfactory interview with a recommendation for hire from a MSHS Nurse Manager/Director.
- Signed Agreement of a two (2) year work commitment
- Current AHA BCLS certification

Curriculum Details

The Ambulatory Fellowship program will be offered two times a year with starts in April and September.

For 2025, the cohorts will start the week of September 15.

How to Apply

To learn more and apply to the fellowship, please visit mountsinai.org/nursing or email mandy.zhao@mountsinai.org

